

Welcome to the Different Isn't Bad Podcast for kids and kids at heart.
I'm Miss Robin
Today is a special Holiday Magic episode.
Today is Labor Day.
Listen in.

Happy Labor Day

Did you know that Labor day is a special holiday celebrated ONLY in the United States! It comes every year on the first Monday of September.

Some kids don't go back to school until after this holiday. Lucky you!

Labor day is a day we celebrate American workers and how hard they work to help our country. Since it's still usually hot lots of people go to the beach or hang out by the pool with family and friends grilling their favorite foods. Sounds like another holiday we know doesn't it?

Here are a few fun facts for you to talk about with your friends and family today.

- Labor Day is the third most popular day for grilling in the United States. WOW!
- Labor Day is considered the end of the Hot Dog season. Boo hoo! So sad. I love me some hot dogs.
- It used to be that after Labor Day it wasn't fashionable to wear white clothes or shoes because it was the end of the summer, but not anymore! Wear as much white as you want all year long.

For more about Labor Day I'll link to some fun resources in the transcripts of this podcast on my website.

Today, as you celebrate with your family and friends, remember to say "Thank You" to all those grown ups around you that work hard everyday so you can have food, clothes and a place to sleep.

See you next time.